

Graydon C. Gordian

442 Sterling Place, Apt. 10 • Brooklyn, NY 11238 • 512-771-6388 • graydon.gordian@gmail.com

PORTFOLIO

Politics Daily: "Guantanamo Detainee Faces Trial in First Obama-Era Military Tribunal" & "Guantanamo Detainee's Torture Claim Dominates Hearing"

The articles cover the pretrial hearings of Omar Khadr, a 23-year-old Canadian citizen captured in Afghanistan in 2002 and charged with murder, conspiracy and support of terrorism. They were published on April 27 and 28, 2010, respectively.

Politics Daily: "Judge Says NSA Illegally Wiretapped Islamic Group, but Ruling's Impact Is Limited"

The article reconsiders the impact of a federal court ruling regarding the NSA's warrantless wiretapping of a now-defunct Islamic charity in Oregon. In particular, it notes that many legal experts do not find the ruling to be as much of a victory for civil liberties advocates as originally portrayed. The article was published on April 10, 2010.

The Rumble, a Sporting News blog: "The Canon Reconsidered: Ralph Wiley's Serenity"

The article reviews Ralph Wiley's 1989 book, "Serenity: A Boxing Memoir." It was published on Feb. 23, 2010.

ESPN.com: "Manu Ginobili's uncertain future in San Antonio"

The article covers the uproar following the revelation that Manu Ginobili of the San Antonio Spurs did not believe he would sign a contract extension with the team. It was published on Jan. 20, 2010.

48 Minutes of Hell, an ESPN affiliate: "Beautiful Games"

The article explores the aesthetic significance of the 2008-09 Barcelona soccer team, and draws comparisons to the NBA's San Antonio Spurs. It was published on Aug. 17, 2009.

The Huffington Post: "Pride and Confusion on the Campaign Trail"

The article is a reflection on my time spent working for the Obama campaign and the compromises it required. It was published on Nov. 18, 2008.